Remember how crabgrass worked on your lawn last summer? Now's the time to do something about it.

There are six recommended materials which are sold as a spray or granular: bandane, benefin, bensulide, DCPA, terbutal and siduron.

The researchers tell us that some years one may give a better performance than another. Because of varying environmental conditions, they aren't consistant in performance.

It's time to plant strawberries. For high dessert quality Earlidawn, Tennessee Beauty and Red Chief are good selections.

Asparagus is a heavy user of fertilizer. It's time to make the spring application and spray for weed control. Princep does a good job with annual grasses and broadleaf weeds.

While you have Princep in the sprayer use it to control weeds under apple, pear, grape and blackberry. Be sure the ground is clean before applying the herbicide. Do not apply in a circle around a tree. This causes a heavy distribution at the center of the circle and injury may result. T o obtain uniform distribution of material, on an 8' X 8' area, apply a 4' X 8' band on either side of the tree or vine. Some apple varieties, such as Golden Delicious, have shown minor injury to certain herbicides.

Herbicides can save a lot of handwork and improve the appearance of the plantings. Use care in making application; for example, do not apply to the truck, foliage or fruit.

We've had several inquiries about when to start mowing lawns. The recent warm weather has really "kicked off" well fertilized lawns. A rule of thumb is to mow in order not to remove more than ⅓ of the total height of the grass at a single mowing.

Be sure the mower is set at the proper cutting height. Bluegrass should be mowed so that 2 inches of grass remains. For tall fescue 2½ inches is the proper height.

* * *

Go slow on adding nitrogen to lawns. Best results are obtained with fall application of fertilizer.

A soil test is your best means for determining the need for phosphate, potash and lime.

* * *

When selecting corn varieties, if corn is to be grown near Johnson Grass better plan on a MDMV resistant variety.

We've lost our MDMV plots the last three years because of flooding. Ohio tests indicate that Pioneer 3147, P.A.G. s X 17A and Funk G 4761 are among the top producers of MDMV resistant corns.

Trees that grow less than 30 feet tall have an important place in modern landscaping. Maples, elms and oaks often grow too tall to be in scale with the size of the home.

Here are several that should be considered: Saucer and Star Magnolia; Cornelian Cherry and Kousa Dogwood, European Mountain Ash; Japanese Red, Thread-leaf Japanese, Hedge and Armour Maples; Golden Chain, Golden Rain and Redbud.

MRS. EVANS' 4-H

The meeting of Mrs. Evans home room was called to order March 12 by our President, Susan Smith. The recreation leaders led us in some songs and games. Mr. Sweet reminded the people that were going to give demonstrations to meet after school Thursday, March 15 in the Library if they wanted help in how to give them. The demonstrations will be given Saturday, March 31 from 9:30 to about 12:00. Also there is going to be a 4-H T.V. series called Mulligan Stew on good nutrition. This series starts March 31 at 9:00 and will continue every Saturday until the first week in May. Mr. Sweet then gave a demonstration on how to make Honey Milk Balls. When he was finished he passed them out to the class. Then he gave the class the recipe on how to make them. The meeting was then adjourned.

Lime
Who, What, Why and How

WHO USES LIME?

Any person that has anything to do with growing plants must use lime periodically. This is especially true in the eastern and southeastern parts of our country where most of our soils, in their natural state, are acid.

Some plants require a higher "lime level" soil than others. Corn and grasses, for example, are intermediate in the amount of lime needed. Legumes, on the other hand, have a relatively high lime requirement.

Homeowners interested in having beautiful lawns and productive gardens need to lime such areas as the need is shown by a soil test.

WHAT IS LIME?

Most of our lime comes from limestone quarries. To be useful as a liming material, the stone must be crushed sufficiently fine so as to break down in the soil in a reasonable length of time. There are other types of lime such as burned and quick lime. Marls, certain slag materials, and ground oyster shells can also be used as liming materials.

WHY IS LIME NEEDED?

Lime counteracts soil acidity and at the same time supplies the important plant nutrient calcium, and also magnesium if dolomitic lime is used. Lime, because it decreases acidity, increases the availability of phosphorus and reduces the amount of potassium lost by leaching.

In brief, lime is the foundation upon which a sound fertilization program is built. Neither lime nor fertilizer, alone, will get the plant growth and yields that you desire over the long run. Both are needed, but fertilizer is applied annually, whereas lime is needed only about every 4 to 8 years - depending upon your cropping system and fertilization program.

HOW IS LIME USED?

First, a soil test must be made to check the need for lime. Most lime for large fields is applied with a bulk or pull-type spreader. For yards and gardens, lawn spreaders can be used.

Soil samples, to determine lime and fertilizer needs, can be sent to the Soil Testing Laboratory, VPI&SU, Blacksburg, Virginia 24061. Results of tests are sent to your county agricultural agent for lime and fertilizer recommendations. He can also answer your questions on sampling soils and provide sampling supplies.

Allen Watkins

APPOMATTOX NATIVE WINS SALES AWARDS

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Watkins, of Willingboro, N.J, his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hamlet. They arrived March 8th after having flown in from Marco Island on the Gulf of Mexico where they spent their vacation. Allen is a native of Appomattox.

The winter vacation, along with a diamond ring, was awarded Allen and a gold bracelet for his wife, Deloris, by his employer, Minnesota Minning & Mfg. Co., for having attained one of the highest industrial sales achievements of his division in the east in 1972.

This broad based manufacturing company (3M) makes thousands of products for the home and industry, where Scotch tape, sandpaper, printing plates and copying machines are just a few. The company is actively seeking top level promotable black people for their sales branches in every major city in the world. Allen, six years ago being one of their first field representatives, feels that more black college graduates should explore the industrial sales field with their eyes on management in the many large companies in the United States. We should look beyond the sterotyped glad-handing door to door salesman, we all know and into the trillion dollar professional industrial area that is at the very base of this country's economy.

Allen is the son of the late Douglas and Beutha Watkins and is a graduate of the Carver-Price High School. He received his B.A. degree from West Virginia State College and further studied at Temple University.

Allen is married to the former Delois Kennedy, who teaches in the Willingboro Public School System.

What about Seat Belts?

Are they desirable as a safety measure?

Here is what one of the largest, oldest and most successful insurance companies says on the subject:

The Travelers Insurance Company, who wrote the first automobile liability insurance policy, thinks so well of seat belts that; if you own one of their Family automobile policies with medical coverage, they will double the medical coverage at no extra cost should you have an injury in an automobile accident and your seat belt was fastened.

Get in the habit of fastening your seat belt as soon as you get in your car.

The record shows that most accidents occur in 25 miles of home.
